DIPHTHERIA is as great a scourge to-day as at any time during the last 40 years.

The Article below, second in our new series, is written by a neutral observer.

REAT BRITAIN has literally put all her eggs in one basket, her butter in one tub and her sugar in one bowl and labelled them a "pool"—a product of Mars from which wartime rations are being drawn.

After-less than six months of war, Britain decreed curtailment of consumption of butter, sugar, ham, bacon and meat. It was not until 1918 that compulsory rationing was introduced in the world war, but the government and the man in the street remember those days with a shudder.

In that fateful week of February, 1918, more than 1,500.-000 persons lined up in wintry streets before food shops. On the Saturday before rationing began, 500,000 lined up hoping to obtain only potatoes.

In munitions plants, workers lay down their tools to take their exhausted wives to their places in food queues. Soldiers wrote bitter letters from the front, complaining of this treatment of their families. The minister of food, Lord Rhondda, feared revolution unless immediate relief was given.

There is no such prospect to-day. Despite German submarine, aerial and mine-layer warfare, unending ship convoys creep into Britain's ports with cargoes from all parts of the world in contrast to Britain's heavy food shipping losses in the world war.

While only a fraction of Britain's merchant marine has been lost thus far, authorities emphasise this gigantic war effort requires bullets instead of butter, bully beef for the troops rather than breakfast bacon. Every spoonful of sugar saved-Britain expects to reduce her sugar imports 25 per-cent.-will sweeten Britain's foreign exchange reserve for purchase of airplanes and munitions.

Mindful of the last war's lessons and the fact Germany has been on a virtual rationing basis for several years, the government began pre-

"MR. POOL," whom the German radio for a time believed was the food controller, became the most unpopular symbol of war.

Critics said "Mr. Pool" took 150,000,000 pounds of tea from London warehouses, scattered it around the country, gathered it up again and mixed it up still they couldn't tell China tea from the cheap-side brand.

Hitler threatened a "blitzkrleg," and authorities thought Nazi bombers would come. The great Smithfield ment market in London was closed and scattered throughout the country. Critics said the result was oversupplies of meat in some sections and scarcity in others -some districts going without beef ... and others without ham or bacon. Butter was hauled about the country by barge and railway. Some left on the sidings become rancid. # To Keep Face Youthful.

What to do about our face when you are reducing has always been problem. Now beauty specialists think they have the answer. Use plenty of rich cream, and rest for 15 minutes a day with your heels higher than your head. This is most easily accomplished by propping your feet on the footboard of your bed with two pillows under your hips. The theory is that the blood surges to your face, flushing it, and giving it the firm, rested look of youth. This is a restful trick at the end of a tiring day, whether you are reducing or not,

HASH, according to Webster, is "a form of minced food prepared from materials previously cooked, as ment, potatoes, bread crumbs, etc., and recooked by stewing or frying." Whoever first named the dish probably did not realize what a contribution was made to homemakers the world over in their efforts to convert yesterday's left-overs into a satisfying dish for to-day's meal.

'BRITAIN IS OUR BEST FRIEND'

SAID

HERTZOG, Boer leader who fought Britain in the Roer war and opposed Britain in 1914-18. a few years ago showed a change of heart. In 1935 he said:-

"Once I regarded England as the enemy, and would not have cared if the Fleet sank to the bottom of the sea.

"Now our liberty has been restored, and the enemy of former days has become our best friend.

"The British Navy means the same to us as to the British people, for the freedom of our country depends on it as England's freedom does."

WESTERN Front Romance No. 1 has come to Olga Richards, 22-year-old variety actress from Chingford, Essex-all because she joined the "Hello, Happiness" company to entertain the British Forces in France.

After a cold journey from England, the company arrived late at night at a town in the B.E.F. area where they were to give a keries of shows.

Put arrangements had broken down-there was no one to meet the shivering players and they had no idea where to go.

The position seemed pretty black when Olga sighted an R.A.F. officer. She ran up to him and he gave a delighted smile of recognition—he was a young squadron leader whom she had met at a pre-war party in

He took charge of the whole company, saw that they had hot food, and put them to bed in tents. Olga slept in a "fleabag."

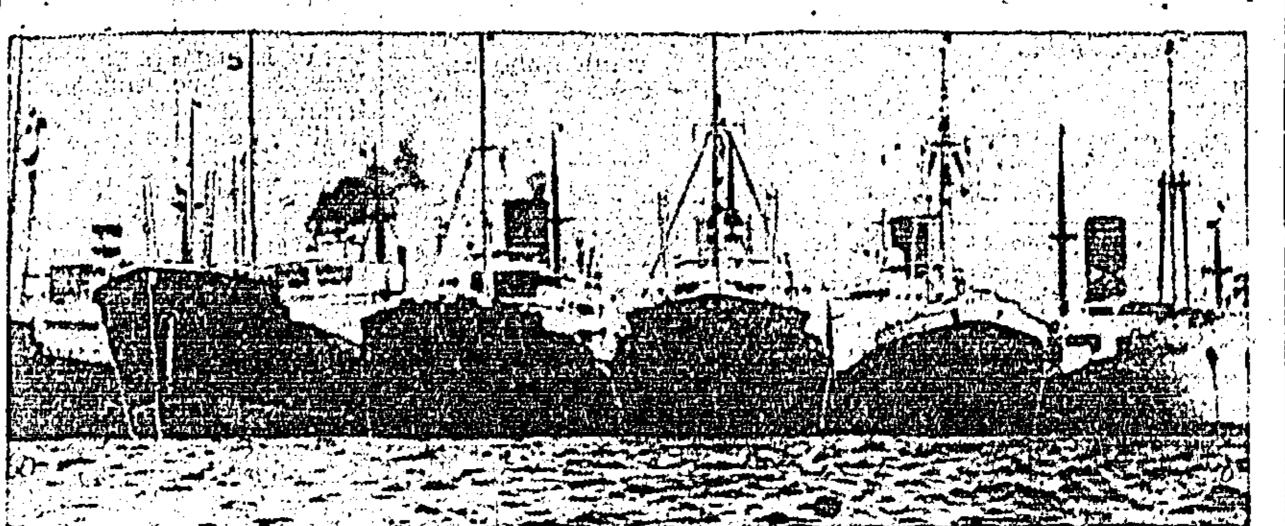

Wire Ring Next day Ensa officials made a belated arrival, the series of shows began-and every night the squadron-leader saw the show from the front row of the stalls.

On the company's last night in the town he and Olga became engaged. There was no time to buy an engagement ring, so the squadron-leader placed on the third finger of Olga's left hand a temporary ring made of wire from one of his nero-

The Lie Weapon

THE British people cannot know too much about the principles that guide the Nazis in their propaganda. For propaganda is not less a weapon of war than bombs or torpedoes.

The Nazia have exalted propaganda to a position it never occupied in any other State. It has been for them a peacetime as well as a war-time weapon. They hoped these vital necessities. This is fusing to let building proceed. 800,000 able-bodied workers had with its help to win the present evident from statements made struggle in Europe without striking a blow, but in that they were disappointed.

If they applied more psychology, understanding-of-the-mentality-of other peoples, to their propagandist successful. But the Germans were never good at understanding others And even as directed at their own people the Nazis' propaganda has at times shown serious cracks and deficiencies...

A noteworthy example was the manner in which the Graf Spee's first and last brush with British warships was mishandled Goebbels's department. Had such bungling been committed by British Government, we should never have heard the end of it from the Hamburg gentleman. As it is, the errors made in announcing the closing activities of the Graf Spee did more than anything else to shake neutral faith in the trustworthiness of news made in Germany.

Goebbels's guiding maxim is, "The bigger the lie the better the propaganda." But there is danger in excess. A point is reached when no one can be expected to believe. A notable recent example was, the German claim to have shot down about forty British acroplanes in what has been described as the largest air engagement of the war. There was not nearly that number of British planes in the battle.

Though the crudenesses of German propaganda are often all too. apparent, the British people need to be constantly on guard against it. Some are strangely predisposed to believe that there must always be something in the malicious inventions or pervertions of Hamburg, "else the Germans would not have said it." The point is that German masses of workers were propagandists will say anything clamouring for more and better which they think will produce housing accommodation. If abroad—or at home—the desired there had been any reserves, effect. Truth simply does not enter Hitler would not have risked into the case.

Long HOW

ROM the very outset, the ultimate result of this war has been a foregone conclusion. No people could stand indefinitely against the odds stacked against Hitler-Germany. All that is really in question is the probable length of time it will take to reach the inevitable end. Not only had the chiefs of the German Army repeatedly warned the Fuehrer of the enormous military hazards of armed conflict with the Western Powers under existing conditions, but the German civil authorities also made the position plain.

Last April, for example, the official organ of the Reich Chamber of Economics published an article entitled, "How Long Could War Last?" pointing out that Germany did not command the material resources to fight a long war, and that her opponents had it in their power to prevent the conflict being a short one.

WHY did Hitler disregard all this expert counsel? Because, during the several years of preparation for totalitarian war. Nazism had so overstrained the economic system of the Third Reich that, at last, drastic measures had to be taken to divert attention from impending bankruptcy and restore the waning prestige of the Fuehrer.

He himself imagined that this might be accomplished by another lightning conquest which—assuming that Russia could be neutralised—the Western Powers would not dare to contest.

Hitler made a mistake. Finding himself entangled in a life-and-death conflict which he is powerless to shorten, he has now to face a long struggle in which the Western Powers will use every conceivable means of forcing Germany to spend her material resources without pro-

Meanwhile, Germany will only be able to hold her own at all by rigid economy of what mater als she already has; she will not dare to risk anything until sure that every projectile will hit. At the same time, she will have to wage a desperate campaign to widen her basis of supply.

.Hitler's most urgent problems will be how to maintain supplies of food, petrol, iron, textiles, rubber, and non-ferrous metals like copper.

There has never since then been any chance to replenish them. For immediately afterwards Austria and then Czecho-Slovakia were invaded—and the consumption of raw materials which have military significance immediately skyrocketed.

Worsel Both of these territories were great consumers of industrial raw materials for which Germany had to provide the supply, because when they became part of the Reich these countries lost their chief sources of foreign currencies and hence found their imports crippled. The famine of raw materials in the Reich then became so great that all materials had to be rigidly rationed. National defence projects made prior claims on all available supplies, and national defence projects do not help to sustain imports; economically they are "useless." Even the graveyards were

Where the whole scheme breaks down is that it has been found impossible to obtain anything likeenough of the basic raw materials to keep all the new synthetic industries going. Staple fibre synthetically produced from wood is a good serviceable fabric. But Goering himself, in a recent public speech, had to admit that even now Germany is being forced to cut fifty per cent. more timber each year than grows in her forests.

She cannot make up her deficit by increased import because there is a world-scarcity in timber. It would take "forty to fifty years of forest-culture," said Goering, to increase the timber output in Germany enough to meet present needs. But the most catastrophic deficit is in coal. Germany has vast coal deposits, .. enough for all conceivable needs for some hundreds of years. But it is not available until it has

Newspaper Comment London, Mar. 10.

As seen in London, the future developments in the Russo-Finnish struggle are in the hands of the Finns and Scandinavian Powers, says the Sunday Times diplomatic correspondent.

The reproaches that the Allies have not given sufficiently clear indications of their intentions have put the situation in a wrong light. The degree of assistance they might render depends, apart from the attitude of the Finns and the position of the Allies generally, upon the view taken by Sweden and Norway of the facilities they could offer. ... Hitherto both these countries have been unwilling to commit themselves to facilitate measures of large scale assistance to Finland by the Allies.

The Scandinavian attitude is apparently inspired by fear of possible consequences a fear which ignores what the future may have in store were Finland forced to accept a dishonourable peace. It is the view of British circles that Allied aid to Finland cannot be effectively intensifled so long as the attitude of the Scandinavian countries remains unchanged .- Reuter.

The elite of Hongkong's canine community had their day yesterday. Whether they enjoyed the stares and pettings of the thousands who went to see them is questionable, but it was their day all right. Inside St. John's Place none had eyes for anyone or anything except them and if they could have understood all the nice things that were said (perhaps many dld) many to-night must be suffering from swollen heads.

What puzzled the average specia-tor was how the judges were going to pick the best when they all looked The Hongkong Embossing so equally good. After the work had been done, however, things began to become clearer, outstanding points were noticeable. For instance, Mrs. F. Merritt's cocker spaniel Merry Squire of Ware was selected as the champion dog of the show. A close look showed the amazing beauty of this fine animal. ## Factory To Make Soya Bean Products

With its main purpose a cheap supply of nutritious food at prices within the reach of the masses, the new factory of the Hongkong Soya Bean Products Co., Ltd., was declared open by the Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo on Saturday. Turning a switch, the Hon. Mr. Lo set the factory in

The factory is situated in Great George Street, Causeway Bay, and has modern equipment.

Several experts demonstrated the making of "Vita" milk, from soyn beans, calcium and cod-liver oil. Among those present were the Hon. Dr. P. S. To most of us here this afternoon, soya bean needs no introduction. We come in contact with it in our every day life, in one form or another. Its food value and long been recognized by our great grandfathers, 5,000 years ago; and what our fore-fathers guessed of its nutritional value has now been verified by the present-day chemists in the modern laboratories Much public interest in soya bean has been roused in Hongkong, since the Nutrition Committee first recomtechnical advice.

To Combat Tuberculosis Mr. Lo thanked Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo and asked him to accept a souvenir, a silver cake server. The Hon, Mr. M. K. Lo in responding said in part: The Company's activities might well constitute an important contribution to the solution of the pressing and important question of nutrition in the Colony.

I have always taken a keen interest in the question of nutrition, and it is because I feel that a very important and authoritative report which has recently been published in regard to this matter should be more widely known than it would appear to be, that I wish to take this opportunity of directing attention to this document.

Under the energetic leadership of the Hon. The Director of Medical ·Services, the social conscience of the Colony has been roused in regard to the prevalence of tuberculosis in the Colony and to the appalling amount of malnutrition amongst the general masses of the poor in the Colony, with the result that energetic action is being taken to combat both.

It seems to me that any concert which could produce, under approved hygienic conditions, soya bean milk in such quantity as to be available to the poorer section of the com-munity, and at such low prices as to be within their means, would be rendering a public service to the Colony. I understand that the Hongkong Soya Bean Products Company seeks to fill this role. It has imported the latest machinery and will produce soya bean milk cheaply and under hygienic conditions. I wish the promoters and the Company all prosperity and success.

SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

STOCKHOLM, Mar. 10 (UP).—The following information has been gleaned from diplomatic and official quarters regarding the Russo-Finnish peace negotiations:

Firstly, that the Russians are discussing a general agreement for peace after which, if they are successful, an armistice will be

Secondly, that such discussions are now taking place in

Thirdly, that if successful, the armistice stage of the negotiations will be followed by final discussions on the terms in which new boundaries will be drawn between the two countries, official acts of territorial cession drawn up, and general guarantees given regarding the integrity of Finland, together with the status of her relations vis-a-vis Russia, and means of settling future dispute which might arise.

The result of these discussions will probably be embodied in a general treaty signed by both countries. No Second Munich.

ATTEMPT TO CURB JAPAN'S ARMY

Tada Reveals Plans To American Correspondent

PEIPING, (UP). — Lieut.-Gen. Hayao Tada, supreme Japanese army commander in North China, outlined four objectives in connection with future military operations, in an interview with Harry T. Brundidge, St. Louis Star-Times writer. His interview was the first granted to a newspaperman since taking the high command.

Gen. Tada's stated objectives are: 👌 Elimination by the Japanese army of aerial bombings of Chinese civilian populations in unfortified towns.

Instructions (already given) to all Japanese soldiers that henceforth any misconduct will result in punishments from imprisonment to death. Orders to soldiers to conduct themselves humbly and not as representatives of a conquering power. Restoration of the Chinese farmer to the soil, and the soil to the farmer: new standards of living for alleviation of suffering in poverty-strickers

The interview was arranged by Col. Hitoshi Hamada, chief of the press section of the North China hendquarters of the Imperial Japanese Army, and his assistant Lieut. Mosaru Takata. Lieut Tokata acted as interpreter.

To Pacify China

In the course of an exchange of questions and answers, Gen. Tada said the Japanese expeditionary forces will proceed with their original mission to pacify China. The army will assume responsibility for the maintenance of peace and order, but all political, cultural and economic matters, excepting affairs of Chinese farmers, will continue to be handled by the China Affairs Board ." (which meets regularly in Tokyo). "My greatest concern to-day is the Chinese farmer." said Gen. Tada:

"It is our plan to restore the Henry Goodwin Norman, father farmer to the soll, and to enable

The Article below, second in our new series, is written by a neutral observer.

REAT BRITAIN has literally put all her eggs in one basket, her butter in one tub and her sugar in one bowl and labelled them a "pool"—a product of Mars from which wartime rations are being drawn.

After less than six months of war, Britain decreed curtailment of consumption of butter, sugar, ham, bacon and meat. It was not until 1918 that compulsory rationing was introduced in the world war, -but the government and the man in the street remember those days with a shudder.

In that fateful week of February, 1918, more than 1,500.-000 persons lined up in wintry streets before food shops. On the Saturday before rationing began, 500,000 lined up hoping to obtain only potatoes.

In munitions plants, workers lay down their tools to take their exhausted wives to their places in food queues. Soldiers wrote bitter letters from the front, complaining of this treatment of their families. The minister of food, Lord Rhondda, feared revolution unless immediate relief was given. There is no such prospect to-day.' Despite German submarine, aerial and mine-layer warfare, unending ship convoys creep into Britain's ports with cargoes from all parts of the world in contrast to Britain's heavy food shipping losses in the world war. While only a fraction of Britain's merchant marine has been lost thus far, authorities emphasise this gigantic war effort requires bullets instead of butter, bully beef for the troops rather than breakfast bacon. Every spoonful of sugar saved-Britain expects to reduce her sugar imports 25 per cent.—will sweeten Britain's foreign exchange reserve for purchase of airplanes and munitions.

Mindful of the last war's lessons and the fact Germany has been on a virtual rationing basis for several years, the government began pre-

Hitler threatened a "blitzkrieg," and authorities thought Nazi bombers would come. The great Smithfield meat market in London was closed and scattered throughout the country. Critics said the result was oversupplies of meat in some sections and scarcity in others -some districts going without beef and others without ham or bacon. The human family to-day consists of about 1,450,000,000 individuals. In Asia, where man was first planted, there are now about 800,000,000; on an average, 120 to the square mile. In Europe there are 320,000,000; averaging 100 to the square mile. In Africa, there are 210,000,000. In America, North and South, there are 110,000,000, relatively thinly scattered and recent. In the islands, large and small, probably black are as five to three, the remaining 700,000,000 being intermediate -brown and tawny. (There are now over 2,000,000,000 on the enrth .- Ed.).

After a cold journey from England, the company arrived late at night at a town in the B.E.F. area where they were to give a series of shows.

Put arrangements had broken down-there was no one to meet the shivering players and they had no idea where to go.

The Lie Weapon

THE British people cannot know too much about the principles that guide the Nazis in their propaganda. For propaganda is not less a weapon of war than bombs or torpedoes.

The Nazis have exalted propaganda to a position it never occupied in any other State. It has been for them a peacetime as well as a war-time weapon. They hoped with its help to win the present struggle in Europe without striking a blow, but in that they were disppointed.

If they applied more psychology, understanding_of_the_mentality_of other peoples, to their propagandist enterprises, they might be more successful. But the Germans were never good at understanding others. And even as directed at their own people the Nazis' propaganda has at times shown serious cracks and deficiencies.

A noteworthy example was the manner in which the Graf Spee's first and last brush with British warships was mishandled by Goebbels's department. Had such bungling been committed by British Government, we should never have heard the end of it from the Hamburg gentleman. As it is, the errors made in announcing the closing activities of the Graf Spee did more than unything else to shake neutral faith in the trustworthiness of nows made in Germany.

Goebbels's guiding maxim is, "The bigger the lie the better the propaganda." But there is danger in immediately skyrocketed. excess. A point is reached when no one can be expected to believe. A notable recent example was the German claim to have shot down about forty British acroplanes what has been described as the largest air engagement of the war. There was not nearly that number of British 'planes in the battle. Though the crudenesses of German propaganda are often all too apparent, the British people need to be constantly on guard against it Some are strangely predisposed to bollove that there must always be something in the malicious inventions or pervertions of Hamburg, "else the Germans would not have said it." The point is that German propagandists will say anything clamouring for more and better which they think will produce housing accommodation. If abroad—or at home—the desired offect. Truth simply does not enter. Hitler would not have risked into the case.

Long

ROM the very outset, the ultimate result of this war has been a foregone conclusion. No people could stand indefinitely against the

1935 Model HK$1500 odds stacked against Hitler-Germany. All that is really in question is the probable length of time

it will take to reach the inevitable end. Not only had the chiefs of the German Army repeatedly warned the Fuehrer of the enormous military hazards of armed conflict with the Western Powers under existing conditions, but the German civil authorities also made the position plain.

Last April, for example, the official organ of the Reich Chamber of Economics published an article entitled, "How Long Could War Last?" pointing out that Germany did not command the material resources to fight a long war, and that her opponents had it in their power to prevent the conflict being a short one.

WHY did Hitler disregard all this expert counsel? Because, during the several years of preparation for totalitarian war, Nazism had so overstrained the economic system of the Third Reich that, at last, drastic measures had to be taken to divert attention from impending bankruptcy and restore the waning prestige of the Fuehrer.

He himself imagined that this might be accomplished by another lightning conquest which—assuming that Russia could be neutralised—the Western Powers would not dare to contest.

Hitler made a mistake. Finding himself entangled in a life-and-death conflict which he is powerless to shorten, he has now to face a long struggle in which the Western Powers will use every conceivable means of forcing Germany to spend her material resources without pro-

Meanwhile, Germany will only be able to hold her own at all by rigid economy of what materials she already has; she will not dare to risk anything until sure that every projectile will hit. At the same time, she will have to wage a desperate campaign to widen her basis of supply.

Hitler's most urgent problems will be how to maintain supplies of food, petrol, iron, textiles, rubber, and non-ferrous metals like copper.

Worsel Both of these territories were great consumers of industrial raw materials for which Germany had to provide the supply, because when they became part of the Reich these countries lost their chief sources of foreign currencles and hence found their imports crippled. The famine of raw materials in the Reich then became so great that all materials had to be rigidly rationed. National defence projects made prior claims on all available supplies, and national defence projects do not help to sustain imports; economically they are "useless."

Even the graveyards were raided to obtain meagre supplies of iron as scrap. House-building almost ceased, though the masses of workers were there had been any reserves, widespread unpopularity by re-

Where the whole scheme breaks down is that it has been found impossible to obtain anything likeenough of the basic raw materials to keep all the new synthetic industries going. Staple fibre synthetically produced from wood is a good serviceable fabric. But Goering himself, in a recent public speech, had to admit that even now Germany is being forced to cut fifty per cent, more timber each year than grows in her forests.

She cannot make up her deficit by increased import because there is a world-scarcity in timber. It would take "forty to fifty years of forestculture," said Goering, to increase the timber output in Germany enough to meet present needs. But the most catastrophic deficit is in coal. Germany has vast coal deposits, enough for all conceivable needs for some hundreds of years.
But it is not available until it has:

been mined! Armaments and the new synthetic industries have pushed the demandfor coal until it has far outrun the supply. To make one ton of synthetic petrol four tons of coal are needed-two as raw material and two as fuel. Every new power 'works erected to electrify devours.

According to one recent official statement, Germany needs at once-50,000 more coal miners. By the was impossible to obtain other 150,000 to keep going the new; synthetics factories about to be:

Margaret McAlpine sung two numbers in charming style and the Ho Sisters scored with some tap dencing. Dick Labrum and E. # MONDAY MORNING COMMENTARY SOUTH CHINA IN SENIOR SHIELD

Police Lead 1-0 Interval But Fail To Stay The Pace

AFTER LEADING one goal to nil in the first thrilling finishes ever known half, Police failed to keep their end up and went down to South China "A" three goals to two in Hostel Athletic Meetings, their semi-final round of the Senior Shield played Morrison Hall retained the at 'Club ground yesterday.

Police shared the same fate as several other teams against South China "A" this season. They went all out Saturday when they beat in the first half, and fairly swept South China off their their nearest rivals, Lugard feet, but in the second, although they tried very hard, Hall, by 83 points to 81. their attacks lacked the vim to push them home.

MacHardy gave an excellent display at goal for Police. The shots that passed him were unstoppable, the rest, except for slight hesitations and fumblings, he dealt with in proper style.

Blackburn was seen to more advantage than was Chan Kwong-yue. He-cleared strongly and well from his part of the field, and lent valuable support to Chan at right back, who was hardly seen throughout the whole game.

The Police half-back line of Pope, Gough and North, were in fine fettle. Gough in particular kept faithful watch over Lee Wai-tong and allowed him little or no rope. Pope had his hands full in the Ip Pak-wah-Lau Tau-man combination and was pushed even more in the second half when Lai Shlu-wing partnered Ip., North had the measure of Laf, and forced him to take long shots rather than walk his way spoiling work was not so good.

Factory To Make Soya Bean Products With its main purpose a cheap supply of nutritious food at prices

FOOD FOR

within the reach of the masses, the new factory of the Hongkong Soya Benn Products Co., Ltd., was declared open by the Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo on Saturday. Turning a switch, the Hon. Mr. Lo set the factory in

The factory is situated in Great George Street, Causeway Bay, and has modern equipment. Several experts demonstrated the making of "Vita" milk, from soya beans, calcium and cod-liver oil. Among those present were the Hon. Dr. P. S. Selwyn-Clarke (Director of Medical Services), and Mrs. Selwyn-Clarke, Dr. T. Y. Li, Dr. F.

To most of us here this afternoon, soya bean needs no introduction. We come in contact with it in our every day life, in one form or another. Its food value had long been recognized by our great grandfathers, 5,000 years ago; and what our fore-fathers guessed of its nutritional value has now been verified by the present-day chemists in the modern laboratories. Much public interest in soya bean has been roused in Hongkong, since the Nutrition Committee first recom-

We wish to thank the Hon. Dr. Selwyn-Clarke for having given us all the encouragement and inspiration in bringing this Company into being, and Prof. Chlu Yan-tsi for his technical advice.

. To Combat Tuberculosis Mr. Lo thanked Hon. Mr. M. K. Lo and asked him to accept a souvenir, a silver cake server. The Hon, Mr. M. K. Lo in responding said in part: The Company's activities might well constitute an important contribution to the solution of the pressing and important question of nutrition in the Colony.

I have always taken a keen interest in the question of nutrition, and it is because I feel that, a very important and authoritative report which has recently been published in regard to this matter should be more widely known than it would appear to be, that I wish to take this opportunity of directing attention to this

Under the energetic leadership of the Hon. The Director of Medical Services, the social conscience of the Colony has been roused in regard to the prevalence of tuberculosis in the Colony and to the appalling amount of malnutrition amongst the general masses of the poor in the Colony, with the result that energetic action is being taken to combat both.

It seems to me that any concern which could produce, under approved hyglenie conditions, soya bean milk in such quantity as to be available to the poorer section of the community, and at such low prices as to be within their means, would be rendering a public service to the Colony.
I understand that the Hongkong Soya Bean Products Company seeks to fill this role. It has imported the latest machinery and will produce soya bean milk cheaply and under hygienic conditions. I wish the promoters and the Company all prosperity and success.

VATICAN CITY, Mar. 11 (UP).-The Vatican has issued a communique revealing that the German Foreign Minister's audience with the Pope was arranged by the German Ambassador to the Holy See upon Ribbentrop's own request

This is considered very significant by Vatican observers and mest quarters believe it indicates that Ribbentrop is bringing the Pope some kind of proposal which the Reich Government hopes will improve relations between Germany and the Holy Sec.

Significant Protest

It has been pointed out that the Germans a few weeks ago privately protested through the German Ambassador regarding the Vatlean brondenst about German mistreat-I ment of Catholic clergy in Poland. SPECIAL TO THE "TELEGRAPH"

STOCKHOLM, Mar. 10 (UP).—The following information has been gleaned from diplomatic and official quarters regarding the Russo-Finnish peace negotiations:

Firstly, that the Russians are discussing a general agreement for peace after which, if they are successful, an armistice will be nnnounced.

Secondly, that such discussions are now taking place in

Thirdly, that if successful, the armistice stage of the negotiations will be followed by final discussions on the terms in which new boundaries will be drawn between the two countries, official acts of territorial cession drawn up, and general guarantees given regarding the integrity of Finland, together with the status of her relations vis-a-vis Russia, and means of settling future dispute which might arise.

The result of these discussions will probably be embodied in a general treaty signed by both countries.

No Second Munich

The general impression gathered from diplomatic quarters here is that any agreement must not be permitted to become a second Munich in which Finland hands over some territory now and later would be gobbled up. # BRITAIN AT WAR-New Exclusive Series of Articles

ENGLAND CAN'T BE STARVED

The Article below, second in our new series, is written by a neutral observer.

REAT BRITAIN has literally put all her eggs in one basket, her butter in one tub and her sugar in one bowl and labelled them a "pool"—a product of Mars from which wartime rations are being drawn.

After less than six months of war, Britain decreed curtailment of consumption of butter, sugar, ham, bacon and meat. It was not until 1918 that compulsory rationing was introduced in the world war, but the government and the man in the street remember those days with a shudder.

obtain only potatoes. In munitions plants, workers lay down their tools to take their exhausted wives to their places in food queues. Soldiers wrote bitter letters from the front, complaining of this treatment of their families. The minister of food, Lord Rhondda, feared revolution unless immediate relief

Let the sudsy water do the cleansing, dipping the garment up and down in the bath rather than squeezing the suds through the fabric. Squeezing or rubbing would crush the nap. # To Keep Face Youthful

What to do about our face when you are reducing has always been a problem. Now beauty specialists think they have the answer. Use plenty of rich cream, and rest for 15 minutes a day with your heels higher than your head. This is most easily accomplished by propping your feet on the footboard of your bed with two pillows under your hips. The theory is that the blood surges to your face, flushing it, and giving it the firm, rested look of youth. This is a restful trick at the end of a tiring day, whether you are reducing or not.

They said that there were no tigers in this neighbourhood, and expected their dictum to be accepted as final. HERTZOG, Boer leader who fought Britain in the Boer war and opposed Britain in 1914-18, a few years ago showed a change of heart. In 1935 he sald:-

"Once I regarded England as the enemy, and would not have cared if the Flect sank to the bottom of the sea.

"Now our liberty has been restored, and the enemy of former days has become our best friend.

"The British Navy means the same to us as to the British people, for the freedom of our country depends on it as England's freedom does."

WESTERN Front Romance No. 1 has come to Olga Richards, 22-year-old variety actress from Chingford, Essex—all because she joined the "Hello, Happiness" company to entertain the British Forces in France.

After a cold journey from England, the company arrived late at night at a town in the B.E.F. area where they were to give a series of shows.

Put arrangements had broken down-there was no one to meet the shivering players and they had no idea where to go.

The position seemed pretty black | when Olga sighted an R.A.F. officer. She ran up to him and he gave a delighted smile of recognition—he was a young squadron leader whomshe had met at a pre-war party in England, *

He took charge of the whole company, saw that they had hot food, and put them to bed in tents. Olga slept in a "fleabag."

Next day Ensa officials made a belated arrival, the series of shows began-and every night the squadron-leader saw the show from the front row of the stalls.

On the company's last night in the town he and Olga became engaged. There was no time to buy an engagement ring, so the squadronleader placed on the third finger of Olga's left hand a temporary ring

The Lie Weapon

THE British people cannot know too much about the principles that guide the Nazis in their_propaganda. For propaganda is not less a weapon of war than bombs or torpedoes.

The Nazis have exalted propaganda to a position it never occupied in any other State. It has been for them a peacetime as well as a war-time weapon. They hoped these vital necessities. This is fusing to let building proceed. 800,000 able-bodied workers had with its help to win the present evident from statements made struggle in Europe without striking a blow, but in that they were disappointed.

_If_they_applied_more_psychology. understanding of the mentality of other peoples, to their propagandist enterprises, they might be more successful. But the Germans were never good at understanding others. And even as directed at their own people the Nazis' propaganda has at times shown serious cracks and deficiencies.

A noteworthy example was the manner in which the Graf Spec's first and last brush with British warships was mishandled Goebbels's department. Had such bungling been committed by British Government, we should never have heard the end of it from the Hamburg gentleman. As it is, the errors made in announcing the closing activities of the Graf Spee did more than anything else to shake neutral faith in the trustworthiness of news made in Germany.

Goebbels's guiding maxim is, "The bigger the lie the better the propaganda." But there is danger in immediately skyrocketed. excess. A point is reached when no one can be expected to believe. A notable recent example was the German claim to have shot down about forty British neroplanes in what has been described as the largest air engagement of the war. There was not nearly that number of British planes in the battle.

Though the crudenesses of German propaganda are often all too apparent, the British people need to. be constantly on guard against it Some are strangely predisposed to believe that there must always be something in the malicious inventions or pervertions of Hamburg. "else the Germans would not have said it." The point is that German masses of workers were propagandists will say anything clamouring for more and better which they think will produce housing accommodation. # Long

ROM the very outset, the ultimate result of this war has been a foregone conclusion.

No people could stand indefinitely against the odds stacked against Hitler-Germany.

All that is really in question is the probable length of time it will take to reach the inevitable end.

Not only had the chiefs of the German Army repeatedly warned the Fuehrer of the enormous military hazards of armed conflict with the Western Powers under existing conditions, but the German civil authorities also made the position plain.

Last April, for example, the official organ of the Reich Chamber of Economics published an article entitled, "How Long Could War Last?" pointing out that Germany did not command the material resources to fight a long war, and that her opponents had it in their power to prevent the conflict being a short one.

WHY did Hitler disregard all this expert counsel?

Because, during the several years of preparation for totalitarian war. Nazism had so overstrained the economic system of the Third Reich that, at last, drastic measures had to be taken to divert attention from impending bankruptcy and restore the waning prestige of the Fuehrer.

He himself imagined that this might be accomplished by another lightning conquest which—assuming that Russia could be neutralised—the Western Powers would not dare to contest.

Hitler made a mistake. Finding himself entangled in a life-and-death conflict which he is powerless to shorten, he has now to face a long struggle in which the Western Powers will use every conceivable means of forcing Germany to spend her material resources without pro-

Meanwhile, Germany will only be able to hold her own at all by rigid economy of what materials she already has; she will not dare to risk anything until sure that every projectile will hit. At the same time, she will have to wage a desperate campaign to widen her basis of supply.

Hitler's most urgent problems will be how to maintain supplies of food, petrol, iron, textiles, rubber, and non-ferrous metals like copper.

Worse! Both of these territories were great consumers of industrial raw materials for which Germany had to provide the supply, because when they became part of the Reich these countries lost their chief sources of foreign currencies and hence found their imports crippled.

The famine of raw materials. in the Reich then became so great that all materials had to be rigidly rationed. National defence projects made prior claims on all available supplies, and national defence projects do not help to sustain imports: economically they are "useless."

Even the graveyards were raided to obtain meagre supplies of iron as scrap. House-building almost ceased, though the widespread unpopularity by re-

Where the whole scheme breaks down is that it has been found impossible to obtain anything like enough of the basic raw materials to keep all the new synthetic industries going. Staple fibre synthetically produced from wood is a good serviceable fabric. But Goering himself, in a recent public speech, had to admit that even now Germany is being forced to cut flfty per cent, more timber each year than grows in her forests.

She cannot make up her deficit by increased import because there is a world-searcity in timber. It would take "forty to fifty years of forest-culture," said Goering, to increase the timber output in Germany enough to meet present needs.

But the most catastrophic deficit is. in coal. Germany has vast coal deposits, enough for all conceivable needs for some hundreds of years. But it is not available until it has: been mined!

ROME, Mar. 10 (Reuter). - The first nuthoritative comment on Russo-Finnish peace efforts has been made by Virginio Gayda in "Voce D'Italia" who says that only Finland can decide if the heroic war she is fighting is to be continued.

But, he says, in the event of eleventh-hour help by the Allies it is impossible to see how such intervention could spare Norway and Sweden and avoid provoking retallation from both Russia and Germany. Any British and French Inter-

MacHardy gave an excellent display at goal for Police. The shots that passed him were unstoppable, the rest, except for slight hesitations and fumblings, he dealt with in proper style.

Blackburn was seen to more advantage than was Chan Kwong-yue. He cleared strongly and well from his part of the field, and lent valuable support to Chan at right back, who was hardly seen throughout the

For Junior Cricket Honours

IN VISITING the Cox's Road ground, and beating the K.C.C. second eleven in a league cricket match on Saturday, Police not only accomplished this achievement for the first time for several years, but also consolidated their challenge for the Second Division championship.

They, with Recreio and I.R.C., are now the leading contenders for the honours, and a playoff between two of these three teams seems more than likely.

Pope won the match for the Police on Saturday as a result of a spleadid innings of 49. Without his contribution, which was the outcome of some free and well-timed batting, Police almost certainly would have As it was, following Pope's dismissal with the score at 128, the Police lost three more wickets without adding a single run, and finally scrambled home by two wickets. Luke had one remarkable spell of bowling when he took three wickets in four balls without conceeding a run.

BELOW STRENGTH

K.C.C. were well below normal strength, and they had to struggle for runs against the accurate Police attack, the mainstays of which were extremely well, his left-hand over the-wicket deliveries requiring careful watching.

Broadbridge hit hard for his 37, but Gray, in accumulating 49 before running himself out, was comparatively subdued and required 80 minutes to make the runs. Police looked well on the way to a comfortable five or six wickets victory while Pope, Loughlin and Hunter were at the wicket, but with Pope's dismissal, some mild excitement was caused by the Police losing three more wickets without addition. Police played the better cricket however, and were value for their three points. Success in their remaining two matches will place them BERRY opened the scoring when in a very strong position for the league honours.

Mr. Williams said Hui and Li lived on the same floor at Wing Fong Lane West, Wanchai-about 20 minutes' walk from where the body was found and before the incident they had often been out to the hillside together to catch jumping spiders.

Up to a certain extent, the relations between them had been quite friendly, but there were several incidents which might be regarded as motives for the crime. They concerned the loss of a belt, an ink pot and a hat sustained by Hui on three separate occasions. Hui held Li to be responsible for these losses, and on one occasion he said to Li's grandmother; "He has stolen my belt and now my ber of Princes to-morrow. hat. I will kill him. Body Found Three Days Later As the time was getting late and the boy had falled to return, the Police were informed and a search instituted., It was not, however, until three days later that the body was found. Early that morning, the boy's grandmother went to a temple to pray for the return of her grandson. On the way, she cried and shouted and someone asked her what was the matter. She told the story and was informed that the body of a boy was lying near the revolver range Kennedy Road. Part of the face had been eaten away by rats.

There were no signs of a struggle but on the neck was a mark. Hanging on a tree nearby was a neck-tie which had been used by Hui as a

Meanwhile, Hul had been taken to No. 2 Police Station for questioning and he gave an extraordinary story to the effect that the boy was strangled by one, Lui Mo-chai, in his presence. Lui, he added, told him not to tell anyone of what had happened, and gave him two blows as a reminder. As a result, Lui was de-tained, but after questioning about 20 persons the Police were satisfied that the accusations against him were untrue.

Statement To Police

Hui was subsequently charged and he made a long statement admitting that he "pressed his fingers on the boy's throat with great strength."
Dr. R. E. Alvares, of the Public Mortuary, said he examined the body of the boy and found marks round the neck but these were caused by something tied round after death. Death was due to asphyxiation consistent with murder.

Questioned by Mr. Lo, Dr. Alvares agreed that a homicidal maniac was subjected to fits. Several boys who had been to the hillside with Hul and Li to catch jumping spiders said that Hui was of a friendly nature. The case is proceeding.
